Worrying Always Weakens.

Worrying is always weakness, it is always danger. In a sense, though often excusable and sometimes unavoidable, it is cowardice; and cowards, as Shakespeare tells us, "die many times before their death." We may regard worry as the price paid by humanity for advance in education and in refinement of feeling; but it is a higher price than need be paid.—Exchange.

DRINK RED MONOGRAM

ALLIGERVILLE, June 11.—Rev. and Mrs. E. O. Schwitters of Schenectady spent a few hours Tuesday last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brooks. As the school children were rehearsing for Children's Day, they were in time to call there and exchange greetings with their former junior congregation. Mr. Schwitters was asked by Mrs. DeWitt to speak to them, which he did, telling them how much he enjoyed talking to them in the past and of now meeting them again. He also told them of his new junior congregation numbering over one hundred. After which they called at a few homes and left regrets that they were unable owing to the short stay and the storm to make more.

"OUR REGIMENT" PLEASED CROWD

Two large audiences thoroughly enjoyed the three act farce, "Our Regiment," at the Kingston Opera House Monday afternoon and evening when it was presented by local talent under the auspices of Kingston Council, No. 356, United Commercial Travelers, for the benefit of the Red Cross fund. More than eight hundred people were at both performances.

The scene of the play was in New Paltz and Clintondale, and the time, August, 1917. Patriotism and comedy were combined in fanciful and artistic fashion, and the production was ably staged. Pacifists and military men played a prominent role and besides the comedy there was throughout the play a touch of love intrigue which lent interest to the story.

The principal parts were taken by John Finn, Miss Hilda Koltz, Miss Blanche Montague, William Newkirk, James W. Scott, Miss Tessie Heuser, Edward S. Morris, Miss Kathryn Humphrey, Miss Hutton and Joseph P. Hittorf, none of whom is a stranger to Kingston audiences and all of whom acquitted themselves with great credit. The play was staged under the direction of Mr. Hittorf who added new laurels to his reputation as a theatrical director. The costumes were the finest seen on a Kingston stage in a long time; the furnishings were loaned by Gregory & Company and music was by Muller.

Between the first and second acts, Frederick M. Snyder of the local Red Cross spoke to the audience of the urgent need of hearty support of the Red Cross and made a plea for a generous response to the appeal to raise $50,000 which is Ulster county's apportionment of the national fund of one million dollars which will be used in equipping and maintaining Red Cross units on the European battlefield.

ECHO SERVICE TONIGHT.

A Novel Meeting in the First Reformed Church.

What promises to be not only a most interesting meeting but a novel one as well will be the "Echo" service to be held this evening in the chapel of the First Reformed Church at 7:45. At that time a number of the delegates from the Kingston Local Union of Christian Endeavor who were able to attend the Ulster County Christian Endeavor convention a short time ago at Wallkill will be present and in a most interesting way describe some of the things which they heard and observed while in attendance at that gathering.

One of the special features of the evening will be a rendition of the "Quitting Party" by Dr. E. K. Lee, who will be assisted by twenty young ladies, this number at the convention being one of the surprises which pleased the large number of persons present the evening it was given.

This meeting being open to all it is hoped that a large number of persons who are interested in the work will be present. A male quartet will also assist in the program rendering some of the selections given at the convention.

SUBMARINE SINKS AMERICAN STEAMER

One Load of Survivors Landed and Two Boats Not Yet Heard From—Lost Steamer a Tank Boat.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, June 12.—The American steamer Petrolite has been sent to the bottom by a German submarine.

The state department was advised of the sinking of the steamer in a consular telegram received this afternoon. The department has discontinued making public dates and locations of disasters to American vessels.

The Petrolite was a tank steamer with a gross tonnage of 3,270. The vessel was constructed in Bredow, Germany, and was registered from New York.

One boatload of survivors has been landed, the consular telegram said, and two boats are missing. The boat that reached shore was in command of the third mate of the Petrolite. It contained the chief engineer and eighteen men of the crew. How many men were in the two missing boats was not known to the consul who reported the disaster.

The Petrolite had been until a few weeks ago the subject of lengthy correspondence between the United States government and Austria.

On December 5, 1915, the Petrolite was attacked by a submarine in the Mediterranean. The identity of the submarine was never established although it was believed to have been an Austrian sub-sea fighter. The vessel was damaged but continued on her way. Miss Larsen, a seaman, was wounded. Up to the time of the diplomatic break many notes concerning the attack on the Petrolite had been exchanged between this government and Austria.

BOND SALES NEAR $700,000 IN CITY

Liberty Loan Finds Hundreds of Patriots in Kingston as Nature of These Splendid Securities is Explained by Committees—Want $100,000 Subscribed Wednesday.

Kingston's subscriptions to the Liberty Loan Bonds stood just $94,250 below the allotment of $793,000 at noon today and two days remain in which to pass the figure designated. Energetic committees having the matter in hand are busily engaged in pushing the sales and efforts are being made to place at least $50,000 in bonds among workers in the city industries this afternoon and Wednesday.

Subscriptions at noon today were $698,750.

These figures indicate that Kingston people are doing far better this week than last and it is now hoped that the greatly to be desired oversubscription may be realized.

Arguments as to why the bonds should be bought are familiar to most newspaper readers but considerable misunderstanding still exists as to the securities themselves.

After a bond is in the possession of the purchaser it is easily negotiable. It may be sold with ease or a loan can be secured by simply borrowing the money at any bank and putting the bond up for security.

Some people have apparently had the idea that the cash could not be realized until the expiration of 15 or 30 years. This is incorrect as there will always be a market for government bonds just as long as there is a government.

The responses to the appeals made to workers are bearing fruit and it is believed that thousands of Kingston people will be proudly displaying buttons that indicate a Liberty Loan Bond investment just as soon as the securities and the insignia are issued.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 12, 1917.

Just before the "Day of Honor" the Frankfurter Zeitung claimed to hear from a "special correspondent" in New York that there was great reluctance to join the colors throughout this country, and explained this on the ground that "from the beginning it was Wilson's war and in the opinion of the American nation it remains an enterprise frivolously begun, entirely unnecessary, and therefore highly immoral." The Day of Honor answered with its registration for military service of nearly ten million Americans in the prime of their young manhood, from whom are to be drawn our needed armies. From the shop, the factory, the counting-house and the fields they came, on willing feet and with devoted hearts to answer their country's call for self-defense against the aggression and evil ambition of the modern Hun.

There is no answer to be compared with this, but there is another answer in rhetorical form, the strong statement of Secretary Lane, "Why We Fight Germany," which ought to be pondered as well as read at Berlin. The Secretary clearly shows that we are in the war because we could not keep out of it, that it is for self-defense, that Germany deceived, betrayed and outrageously wronged us and intends our ruin, that Germany is an outlaw nation, that she has cruelly stamped upon all the rights of the weak, that civilization is shamed by the outrages she has committed, that she "proclaims the gospel that government has no conscience," that her war is one of outworn and lawless feudalism against democracy and the freedom of the masses of men, that Germany as now mistimed must be suppressed or the world is undone. Such is our "frivolous," "Wilson's" war!

Elderly people remember the time when nearly every citizen, outside of the populous centers if not in them, oiled his shoes partly in order to soften them but chiefly in order to make them last longer. A prosperous and thrifty generation has long since forgotten all about this useful precaution, and in such times as these the Department of Agriculture has done well to publish a reminder. The Department's bulletin recommends castor-oil for finer polished shoes, beef-tallow for pioneer memory being desirable or sufficient for rougher foot-wear. We learn also that soles should be treated with linseed oil occasionally, and everybody is advised to have heels repaired as soon as they show signs of wear. A commenting editor remarks that the Department has not made any new discovery in domestic science or told anything that was not known before. We venture to say that the proposition of oiling shoes will be new to millions of the younger generation. In any case the reminder is timely and ought to be useful when shoes are bringing record prices and are likely to cost still more now that the government is buying them by the million pairs. For this reason the newspapers ought to pass the suggestion and recommendations along for the benefit of the multitudes never likely to see the Department's bulletin. The thrifty man who sees to it that the shoes of his family are oiled as often as needful will be well repaid for the small outlay in forethought and labor.

Newspapers and periodicals as well as liquor dealers and purchasers need to keep in mind the act of Congress approved on March 3, 1917, which goes into effect July 1 and provides that after that date—

No letter, postal card, circular, newspaper, pamphlet, or publication of any kind containing any advertisement of spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented, or other intoxicating liquors, or of any kind, or containing a solicitation of an order or contract for said liquors, or any of them, shall be deposited in or carried by the mails of the United States, or be delivered by any postmaster or letter carrier, when addressed or directed to any person, firm, corporation, or association, or any other addressee, at any place or point in any State or Territory of the United States in which it is by the law in force in the State or Territory at that time unlawful to advertise or solicit orders for such liquors, or any of them, respectively.

Violation of this law is punishable by a fine of $1,000 and six months imprisonment for the first offense, and by imprisonment for a year for each subsequent offense. The same punishment is provided for those who order, purchase or cause intoxicating liquors to be transported in interstate commerce, except for scientific, sacramental, medicinal or mechanical purpose, into any State or Territory prohibiting the manufacture or sale of intoxicants therein. It will be a simpler matter for citizens and liquor dealers to avoid violating this law than for newspapers and periodicals that cross the border of barred territory. Obviously the latter must either cut out all liquor advertisements or publish two editions for circulation in two separate territories, very carefully guarding against any error of unintentional substitution. The Freeman will follow the course first mentioned as the only safe and practical one.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"How's your garden getting along?" "All right. I haven't interfered with it yet."—Detroit Free Press.

He—"Pardon me, I don't catch your last name." She—"I haven't caught it yet myself."—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. Featherly—"I paid $250,000 for that portrait of a Duke by Van Dyke." Mrs. Jolliffe—"You got a Duke in your family darned cheap."—Judge.

"I know a bank where the wild thyme blows," he said dreamily. "And I know a bank where the interest on the mortgage grows," said his wife—and it was no dream.—Puck.

"My client appeals for a new trial." "On what grounds?" "On the grounds, your honor, that he is not apt to do worse and might fare a great deal better."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Does your boy Josh help you to run the farm?" "I can't say," replied Farmer Cornstossel. "Sometimes I think Josh puts in too much time lecturing the help on efficiency when they might be plantin' potatoes."—Washington Star.

An Irresistible Call.

Hulda, the Swedish maid, had served her mistress faithfully for a year, when one day she announced her intention of leaving.

"Why, Hulda, what is the matter? Is the work too hard? Or don't you like your wages?"

"De work he be all right, an' de wages he be, too, but de beau—he moost have me."—Minneapolis Tribune.

A Recipe.

An Irishman who is noted for his wit went into a public house the other day and called for a glass of beer. The tumbler was not full enough for Pat's satisfaction, so he quietly asked the publican how many barrels of beer he sold in a week.

"Ten," replied the publican. "I think," replied Pat, "if yer stand me a pint I could put yes on a plan to sell 11 barrels a week."

"Agreed," said the landlord, handing him a pint. "How now am I to do it?"

Pat, taking a big drink at his new pint, "Always fill your glasses."—Tit-Bits.

Surprise for Blonks.

With black rage and indignation seething in his heart, Blonks knocked at the boss's private door.

"Come in—come in!" came in sharp tones.

"Please, sir," began Blonks.

"Oh, it's you!" said the boss, raising one eye.

"Office boys were surely invented to worry busy men! Out with it quickly! What do you want now?"

"The chief clerk kicked me this morning for being late!" blurted out the boy.

"Hang it all!" thundered the chief, "you don't expect me to do everything myself, do you?"—Minneapolis Tribune.

ORDER CONTAINERS EARLY.

Unusual Demand For Barrels, Crates, Etc., is Expected.

In order to avoid serious delay and probable food loss during the approaching harvest season, growers and shippers are urged by the United States Department of Agriculture to estimate accurately their needs and place their orders for barrels, crates, hampers, baskets and other containers for food products at once. They should notify manufacturers to begin making deliveries immediately, or at least as soon as their crops are reasonably assured. Larger supplies of containers will be needed this season than usual. Since crops of most perishable products must be moved as soon as ready to harvest, serious financial loss to growers and shippers and failure to save needed crops may result unless orders for packages are placed promptly and shipments begun within the next few weeks.

The Department of Agriculture is in receipt of advice from widely separated parts of the United States that there may be a package shortage this season unless growers and shippers are able to anticipate their needs. It will be difficult for manufacturers to meet the emergency should abnormal demand for additional packages for perishable crops arise in the midst of the harvest season. At that time, it is pointed out, traffic on railroads will be heaviest and shipments may be delayed when most needed. The deposited in or carried by the mails of the United States, or be delivered by any postmaster or letter carrier, when addressed or directed to any person, firm, corporation, or association, or any other addressee, at any place or point in any State or Territory of the United States in which it is by the law in force in the State or Territory at that time unlawful to advertise or solicit orders for such liquors, or any of them, respectively.

Violation of this law is punishable by a fine of $1,000 and six months imprisonment for the first offense, and by imprisonment for a year for each subsequent offense. The same punishment is provided for those who order, purchase or cause intoxicating liquors to be transported in interstate commerce, except for scientific, sacramental, medicinal or mechanical purpose, into any State or Territory prohibiting the manufacture or sale of intoxicants therein. COMPLICATIONS IN BROKER'S OFFICE

Kline's Balance Some $40,000 Less Than he Supposed it Was—Telegraph Operator Away—Eastman in Charge of Office.

Financial difficulties in the stock brokerage office of John D. Kline of this city resulted today in the execution of a bill of sale and power of attorney by Mr. Kline under which Elmer E. Eastman will be temporarily in charge of the business, and efforts will be made to procure from the brokerage firm of C. H. Van Buren & Company, of which Mr. Kline was correspondent, a statement which will show the exact condition in regard to Mr. Kline's customers.

Mr. Kline, who was at his office today, authorized the statement that Mr. Eastman was in charge temporarily and that he is meeting with customers and creditors in an effort to straighten out matters to the end that business may be continued, under an arrangement that will be satisfactory to everyone.

Mr. Kline would not authorize any further statement in regard to the business.

The change is understood to be due to short-selling on the part of Irving Merwin, one of Mr. Kline's employees. The brokerage firm of Van Buren & Company has no direct dealings with Mr. Kline's Kingston customers but only with Mr. Kline, and all orders for buying and selling stocks received by Van Buren & Co. from Mr. Kline's office on behalf of customers are carried on Mr. Kline's account.

Apparently, Mr. Merwin had been giving selling orders to Van Buren & Company without Mr. Kline's knowledge. Stocks which he ordered to be sold became bullish instead of following the downward trend he believed they would take, and the first intimation Mr. Kline had of any irregularities in his office was when he received a statement from Van Buren & Company indicating that his balance with that firm was considerably less than he had reason to believe it was. The account, it is said, showed that Mr. Kline's account was approximately $40,000 less than his own books showed it was.

The amount stated—approximately $40,000—was made up both of margins deposited with Mr. Kline by customers and accumulated profits which customers allowed to remain with his account instead of taking. The exact character of the various transactions will not be known until a detailed statement is received from Van Buren & Company and is checked up with Mr. Kline's books, which show the actual buying and selling orders received from customers. Not until that statement is received will Mr. Kline or his customers and creditors know precisely where they stand.

Merwin has not been at Mr. Kline's office for the past two weeks. He resides at Port Ewen but has not been there during the past two weeks. He has been telegraph operator in various stock brokerage offices in this city for a number of years and is an expert telegrapher. He has borne the reputation of always executing orders for customers and for his employers promptly, and never engaging in speculation on his own account, for which reason he was considered an especially valuable assistant. For some time, however, he has had the belief that the market was about to break heavily.

FEDERALIZE CO. M WITHIN TEN DAYS

That is What Report From Albany Says—Company to Mobilize Pending Inventory of Equipment—Captain Meagher to Receive Instructions.

Report comes from Albany that the Tenth Infantry, of which Company M is a unit, will be ordered to prepare for federalization within the next ten days. The date was placed between the 15th and 20th of the month. It is said that the companies will be ordered to assemble at their armories, where they will be stationed for a period of two weeks, while the process of federalization is completed. There is a lot of military form to be gone through in the way of checking up equipment and material, and enlistment papers must be made out in duplicate triplicate form. When this order comes immediate steps must be taken to form the local depot unit, which comes under the duties of the Home Defense Committee.

Captain Frank L. Meagher of Company M expects to go to New York Thursday night and at regimental headquarters there instructions will be given in relation to federalization of the Guard.

SOCIETY NOTES.

A very pleasant surprise in the form of a miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Margaret Weber last evening by about twenty-five of her friends at her home, 422 Hasbrouck avenue in honor of her approaching wedding to Thomas C. Carney of New York city. The house was beautifully decorated, the color schemes being red, white and blue. Many handsome and useful gifts were received by the bride-to-be. Songs and games were indulged in and dainty refreshments were served. The guests departed at a late hour extending their best wishes to Miss Weber in the future.

Pfister of New York city and Miss Bessie McLain of this city were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, June 9, at the parsonage of the Reformed Church of the Comforter by the pastor, the Rev. Wilbur F. Stowe. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Lester A. Brockley of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Pfister will make their home in New York city.

Van Dyke-Betts. Saturday evening, June 2, occurred a very pretty wedding at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Mary E. Betts, on North Main street, Ellenville, when Miss Myrtle May Betts and Alex. Van Dyke, son of Mrs. Etta Van Dyke, were united in marriage in the presence of about thirty guests, the Rev. J. E. Appleby of the M. E. Church performing the ceremony. Following the ceremony a very fine wedding supper was served. The young people were the recipients of a fine array of wedding gifts which included silver, cut glass, linen, etc. After a short wedding trip by auto Mr. and Mrs. Van Dyke set up housekeeping in a newly furnished apartment in the Brophy house on Main street. Mr. Van Dyke is an employee of Ulster Knife Works, and well and favorably known and with his bride, who is one of the popular girls of the village, have the best wishes of a host of friends for future prosperity.

Miller-Taylor. At the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. C. F. Taylor, on Center street, Ellenville, Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock the eldest daughter, Miss Lillian B. Taylor, and the Rev. Edward W. Miller of New York were united in marriage by the Rev. W. S. Maines of the Reformed Church, performing the ceremony in the presence of the family and a few friends. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white georgette crepe. The groom the conventional black. The attendants were the bride's eldest brother, Baxter Taylor, Miss A. Eliza Cox and the Misses Virginia and Pauline Taylor, sisters of the bride. It was a very quiet affair and a decided surprise to the bride's many friends. Following congratulations the bride, groom and guests partook of refreshments and then left by auto, going by way of Kingston to New York, where they are to reside. The bride has been for some time one of Ellenville's best school teachers in the primary department—much loved by the pupils—and has a host of friends who extend to the Rev. E. W. Miller and his most estimable wife very hearty congratulations.

Gross-Miller. Miss Emma Irene Naomi Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Miller of Easton, Pa., and William David Gross, son of Mrs. F. W. Gross of this city, were married at six o'clock Tuesday evening, June 5, at the home of the bride's parents, No. 34 North Front street, Easton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward F. Evemyer, pastor of the First Reformed Church of Easton, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Rufus W. Miller of Philadelphia, an uncle of the bride. The bride was attired in a gown of white satin, trimmed with pearls, with an effective court train, and her long veil of tulle, with face veil, arranged in harem style, trimmed with pearls. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, white English orchids and a spray of French orchids. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Emma LaBarre Miller of Philadelphia, who wore a gown of peacock blue tulle, trimmed with silver lace, and a pink picture hat. Her bouquet was of pink snapdragons and sweet peas. The ribbon bearers were Masters Russell and Roger Miller, nephews of the bride. Lorenz K. Ayers of Easton was best man. Following the wedding a reception was held. The color scheme of the decorations was pink and white. Mr. Gross was graduated from Lafayette College in 1913 and is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. He is chief chemist for the Goldschmidt New York Company with offices in New York city. Mr. and Mrs. Gross will reside in Jersey City, N. J.

Hull-Luckenbach. The great gray stone church at the corner of Henry and Remsen streets, Brooklyn, where, for a generation, the late Dr. Richard S. Storrs, noted pulpiteer of Brooklyn, held forth with much intellectual brilliancy, witnessed the marriage Wednesday afternoon of yet another of Brooklyn society's decidedly pretty and well known girls. She was Miss Dorothy Luckenbach, daughter of Mrs. Edward Luckenbach of 26 Montgomery place, Brooklyn, and sister of J. Lewis Luckenbach, who married some months ago, Miss Katie-hel McGregor of San Francisco. The Rev. Dr. James M. Farrar officiated at this wedding, assisted by the Rev. Richard Roberts of the Church of the Pilgrims, and a large reception followed at the Heights Casino. Miss Luckenbach became the bride of Kenneth Duryee Hull of Morristown.

Mr. Hull is a son of Harris T. Hull of Morristown, and has become a familiar figure in Brooklyn since his engagement to Miss Luckenbach was announced. Crowded with wedding guests as Brooklyn was that day, this assembly many representative society people and made itself one of the important occasions of the early summer. Miss Luckenbach, ever since her debut, has been a very prominent girl, and her wedding was, therefore, full of interest.

Both church and casino were decorated with rose tulle, peonies, daisies and hydrangeas, in artistic display. This wedding's bride was in ivory satin and antique rose point. The lace was arranged to form a bolero and was carried down the skirt in cascades, crossing in the back, and thence coming over the shoulders, making a surplice front. Miss Luckenbach's train was of the satin, trimmed with orange blossoms and caught with pearls. She had a veil of tulle with a coronet of old rose point (high in front and lower in the back), fastened with a string of pearls. There were short tulle gloves over her face, and the bride's bouquet was of lilies of the valley and white orchids, the entire effect being unusually dainty and graceful.

Five girls of the sets and one young matron attended Miss Luckenbach. There were as bridesmaids Miss Ruth Blackford and Miss Janet Bowers, Miss Marjorie Church and Miss Jessie Kennard Hopkins. Miss Alberta Weber was maid of honor, and the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. J. Lewis Luckenbach, matron of honor. The matron and the maid of honor were in French blue tulle trimmed with wide cream lace applied in silver. The underskirts were of blue chiffon embroidered with silver hemstitching and trimmed with rosebuds. Both matron and maids had broad stoles of lace on the waists of their gowns.

These gowns and those of the bridesmaids "set off" the dainty costume of the bride and the bride's costume "set them off." The bridesmaids were attired exactly the same as the maid and the matron of honor, except that they were in pink instead of blue. The hats for the six were Leghorn (to match the gowns) with layers of Georgette on the brim and half way up the crown. All carried bouquets of shower-effect of spring flowers, including larkspur, daisies, thistles, garden sweet peas, black-eyed Susans, yellow daisies and corn flowers. To the matron and maid of honor bouquets there were added mignonette roses and to those of the bridesmaids' forget-me-nots.

Mr. Hull's brother, Howard Gillespie Hull of Morristown, N. J., was best man, and the ushers comprised of Joseph Frederick Stillman, Briston Adams Tompkins, Joseph Walker, 3d, John Wesley Castles, Jr., Charles A. Hull, Jr., (another brother of the bride), Reginald Loomis Carter and Stanley William Burke of Plainfield and W. John Logan of Brooklyn.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Luckenbach, is a sister of Edward Weber and of Theodore Weber, of Kingston, where the bride is well known, and where she has often visited. Among those in attendance at the wedding were: Mrs. H. C. Connelly, Miss Helen Connelly, Edward Weber, Miss Ida Weber, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lasher of Kingston.

HOW BABY BONDS MAY BE PURCHASED

For the benefit of depositors and all others who desire to buy Liberty Bonds, the Ulster County Savings Institution has adopted a plan which will be put in effect on Thursday, whereby participation certificates in the sum of $10 each will be issued.

Each certificate represents a payment of $10 on a subscription to the Liberty Loan. No certificates have been issued in any other denomination. On delivery of five of these certificates the holder becomes entitled to receive a $50 United States government Liberty Loan 3 1/2 per cent gold bond, together with all accrued interest coupons attached, at any time after the bonds are issued after June 15th.

The holders of such certificates, therefore, when the exchange is made, will receive interest at the rate of 3 1/2 per cent from the date of the bond issue, June 15, 1917. Up to June 15th, the price of the certificates will be $10 each. After that date they will be sold at par and accrued interest.

U. S. ARMY SUPPLIES ARRIVE IN FRANCE

By Telegram to The Freeman. Paris, June 12.—Supply ships of tremendous power and prodigious size are at a French port unloading quantities of coal, food and other materials for the American army that is to fight in France.

A special despatch to the Journal today described these vessels as being of a new type—big enough to carry the supplies of a fleet and speedy enough to keep up with warships on a long cruise. German prisoners who were put to work helping unload the vessels were described as being very crestfallen when they saw the mighty preparations being made by the Americans for their part in the war.

Flood Warnings Issued.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, June 12.—The weather bureau this afternoon issued flood warnings to all located in the lowlands of Troy and Albany. The warning stated that the Hudson would continue to rise during the next 24 hours and that stages of 18 to 19 feet at Troy and from 14 to 15 feet at Albany might be expected. Merchants having storehouses located within the flood level were busy today moving to higher ground.

Much Smoke But No Fire.

A column of smoke was seen ascending in the vicinity of Mingo Hollow this morning and gave rise to reports of a fire at the Nitro Powder Works. Inquiry at the plant developed that there had been some escaping fumes from waste acids on the water but that there was no fire or damage done.

Lights for Sick Room.

When as in case of sickness, you wish a soft, warm light in a room, rather than the glare that an electric light imparts, make little bags of china silk (any color desired), and put them over each bulb. It is well to run electric around the edge of the circle, which you cut from the silk, so that the bulb can be easily removed by just slipping out of the bag.

Fat. "I admit that it is much of an effort to keep your spirit from growing fat as to keep your body from growing fat," says Margaret Deane in the Woman's Home Companion. "It means making sacrifices; you will give up potatoes to keep your body light; you will have to give up fastidious and gossip to keep your heart light. But the effort pays."

Cat's Standing in Rome. In Rome the cat gave the first evidence of predatory instincts and his value as a mice destroyer. Ambrosius, whose pet partridge had been killed and eaten by a cat, denounces him as one of the devouring dogs of Actaeon. Pliny and Palladius praise him for his destruction of mice and rats, while Caesar's soldiers carried the faces of cats emblazoned on their banners.

RED CROSS NEEDED BY OUR OWN BOYS

Ulster County Men May be in the Trenches Before the Year Ends—
Our $50,000 Will be Needed for Their Care.

Before the falling of the leaves in the autumnal days this year, there will be men, and young men, and the finest young men from our Ulster county (which includes the city of Kingston) homes in the trenches fighting with our allies on the French front. This will follow a period of time spent in crossing the Atlantic and in the training camps at the front. If our soldier boys are to be in the very best possible shape to fight our enemies, there must be hospital service for the transport ships and at the camps. But above everything is the need of Red Cross service when the battle rages. Many of these Ulster county, Kingston city men will fall in battle horribly wounded. Their one and only chance of recovery will be immediate first aid at the front, quick ambulance service, and finally the most perfectly equipped and operated base hospitals. That is their one chance of life.

Today one of the most expensive features of this warfare is the hospital equipment, the ambulance service and the first aid, and the expense is increasing almost daily.

Right here is the second reason why the people of Ulster county should cheerfully contribute their quota of $50,000.

Let us beware lest the price of silk stockings and socks; of silken gowns and elaborate hats, or all the fancy high-priced accessories of an automobile, a new motor car or an expensive Victrola, leave us a little later in the heart-breaking situation of being unable to provide the saving care absolutely necessary for the restoration to life of an agonizingly wounded soldier boy, dear to our hearts.

Today's lesson of self sacrifice must teach us all that luxuries are no longer our daily necessities. We must not hesitate to give to the limit that our sons may join our allies in fighting for freedom and humanity.

We of Ulster county will give our $50,000.

THE REASON FOR IT.

The Man Who Put the Sense in Cent.

(By Joseph C. Lincoln.)

The other evening Alonzo Larkin came into Caleb Rogers' post office and general store at Rogers' Corners, N. Y. state. The mail was distributed, and Caleb was preparing to shut up shop for the night. He noticed the expression on Larkin's face and asked:

"What's the matter with you, Lark? You look as if somebody had left your digestive system out in the hot sun and got it curdled. What's turned you sour?"

Mr. Larkin took a paper from his pocket and glared at it disgustedly. "I was one of the blanks sent out by the military census bureau at Albany. 'Did the rest of you fellows get one of these things?' he asked, addressing the group in general. They all answered in the affirmative.

"That's to help the state government folks in finding out who's fit to go to war," explained Ephraim Taylor condescendingly.

Larkin snickered. "Yes, so they tell me," he sneered, "but just look at it, will you. Just look at it! Did you ever see such foolishness? Look at the dum—fool questions they ask! 'First place, before they even ask my name, they want to know how old I am. Not only that, but the year and month and day I was born. What kind of work do I do? Can I run a railroad gurney—or a flyin' machine? Tut! Tut! Tut! Did you ever hear such rubbish? And—and then to this: How many mules do I own? Mules! That's the limit, but I'll see that I give up how many mules!'"

Caleb came out from behind the counter. "Don't get excited, 'Lonz," he said calmly, taking the paper from Mr. Larkin's hand. "Course I can understand how any personal questions about mules would get you stirred up, but you mustn't let your family pride stand in the government's way. Now, look ere, you 'Lonz—yes, and all the rest of you too—I've been lookin' that paper over, and it strikes me about the completest, simplest, most sensible thing I've seen yet."

"Sensible!" exclaimed Larkin. "Why, I—"

"Yes, sensible. I'm runnin' store here, ain't I? Yes, well, when I want to know just what I've got in hand I take account of stock, don't I? Sure I do. And I find so much good, sensible stock of different kinds, some kinds more valuable than others, but all good for somethin'. And I find some that ain't good for anything, maybe, but it's well to know that it ain't good, so's not to count on it as dependable. When I'm through with that stock takin' I can say, 'Here's so many pounds of tea, so many boxes of crackers, so many yards of ginghams, so much of this and that, each kind in its right place, labeled, ticketed, ready to lay hands on when it's needed.'"

"That's what the state of New York is doin' now, as I see it, takin' account of stock. And they ask you how old you be for this reason: There's an age limit for fishin' in the army or navy. When you get so old that your joints squeak times when you walk, same as mine do, the army can't bear you comin', and you get somewhere else—in the hands, for instance. That's why your age is so important, so all hands can be sorted out and put in the pigeonholes where they belong. And the reason for gettin' the month and day is that many you put your age down as forty-nine, yet in a month before you're needed perhaps you'll be fifty. Or, if you're a kid and a slacker—I think the Lord the majority of youngsters; 'Lonz, I heard a military man—a

CONTROL INSECT PESTS.

How to Protect Cabbages and Onions From Damage.

Reports would indicate that the cabbage maggot is even more prevalent this year than usual and that it has already caused great damage. The cabbage maggot, Pegomya brassicae, is a soft whitish maggot, one-fourth of an inch long that bores into the roots of cabbage, radish, cauliflower and turnip, seriously injuring or destroying the plants. As there are three or four generations produced annually the injury from their activities continues throughout the season. The adult of the maggot is a hairy fly. This fly lays eggs on the ground near the stem of the plant or on the stem itself. The maggots hatch from the eggs and quickly make their way into the ground and attack the roots of the plants.

Control—The cabbage maggot lives over the winter in the soil and in the roots and stumps of old plants for which reason crops subject to its attack should not be grown on the same piece of land twice in succession. This should be borne in mind in planting late cabbage. Further protection may be secured by surrounding each cabbage plant with a disc of tarred paper about four inches in diameter. The discs are slit in the center with a second slit above the first, the two slits forming a "T." This enables the disc to be placed easily and snugly around the stem at the plant to be protected. The earth should be smoothed at the base of the stem of the plant and the disc pressed smoothly against the earth. After the maggots have attacked the roots they may be killed by pouring some carbolic acid emulsion around each plant, but unless great care is used, this treatment may result in killing the plant. Anything that contributes to the quick growth and general vigor of a plant helps to withstand attack for which reason good cultivation and heavy fertilization afford considerable protection.

Onion Thrips—This is one of the most serious insect pests of onions and other vegetable crops. The insect is so small that it is seldom noticed until it has done considerable damage and often not until it has practically ruined a crop. A severe attack gives the plants the appearance of being diseased, the foliage appears to be blasted, becomes spotted and droops.

Control—Spray with Black Leaf 40, 1 part to 500 parts of water in which about 2 ounces of hard soap to the gallon has been dissolved. Spraying should be most thorough, the soil around the plant being sprayed as well as the plant itself. Particular care should be taken to get the spray well down into the axils of the leaves.

Edible Wild Greens.

Pandelions are not the only source of food that can be had for the gathering, according to a statement from the state college of agriculture which mentions the following: watercress, radish, turnip, green, winter cress or yellow rocket, dock, narrow leaved, curled or yellow, sorrel or sorgrass, horse-radish, chicory, tall or slender nettle, burdock, milkweed, mustard, purslane, and purslane or pursley.

While these herbs supply little energy or protein they are valuable sources of plant fiber and they contain organic acids, iron, and mineral matter useful by the body. Much of the mineral matter is lost if the water in which they are cooked is thrown away. The college gives the following directions for cooking portherbs:

Pick over the herbs, wash them well, and cook them in boiling water or in steam until they are tender. A speck of soda added to the cooking water helps to soften tough fiber and to preserve the green color. For old, strong-flavored plants, a second water for cooking may be necessary. Whenever flavor permits, the water in which the herbs are cooked should be saved and used for bouillon or cream soup. A few slices of salt pork or bacon may be cooked with the greens. While the possibilities of danger from poisonous plants being gathered for greens are not great, it is better to make sure of the identity of the plants used for food.

LACE-WEAVERS TO TAKE OVER $2,000

U. S. Lace Curtain Mills Workers to Become Owners of Liberty Loan Bonds and Receive Interest From Date of Issue—Company, Also Investors.

The employees of the United States Lace Curtain Mills have subscribed to almost $2,000 worth of Liberty Loan Bonds, a very large percentage of employees having signified their desire to participate in the loan. Many of the bonds have been taken by weavers who, while born in England and Scotland, are now true blue Americans and anxious to do their bit to help.

The United States Lace Curtain Mills is financing this loan for the employees who will pay a small amount weekly and when the full value of the bond has been paid, each employee will be handed his bond with all the coupons attached, the company not charging anything for the buying out of the money. While a bond will not be fully paid up for many months, under this plan it will start earning 3 1/2 per cent interest for its owner from the very day of its issue.

The company has also subscribed heavily in its own name to the Liberty Loan Bond issue through its New York branch.

Hint to husbands: When drying dishes hold the slippery ones over the rest of the dishes. Then when they slip, the chances of breaking more dishes are increased many times over the more familiar plan of dropping them on the floor. The more dishes you break, you know, the fewer you have to dry. There is no object in drying broken pieces of china.—Kansas City Star.

GERMAN PLOT TO INVADE CANADA

Federal Agent Confirms Loudon's Story of Ammunition Stored in New York City and Drilling by German Reservists.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, June 12.—Disclosure of a plot of the German government to invade Canada with five army corps composed of the Krigerbund and assertions that millions of rounds of ammunition has been stored in this city ready for immediate shipment were made today by Count Max Lyner Loudon, on trial in general sessions.
He said he was to be chief of staff and field marshal of the expedition. Drills were in progress among the German reservists in every turn hall in the country, he said.
These statements were confirmed by Federal Agent Adams, who also declared that 2,000,000 rounds of
